SECT. I. PRELIMINARY. The Rev. F. R. Wilson, Vicar of St. James', kindly gave me leave to transcribe the registers of his parish and to have the originals in my own keeping for the purposes of transcription, without which I could not have transcribed them. Accordingly on March 6, 1914, I fetched them from the vestry, on March 7 I began to transcribe, and by April 6 I had made progress enough to be able to start the simultaneous printing of two volumes, one at Bury St. Edmunds and the other at Woodbridge. In the following August came the war. Had I not begun before it I do not think that I should have begun at all. But having begun I went on. The original registers have remained in my keeping for the best part of two years. For it is essential to accuracy that proofs should be corrected from them and not from the copy. And the printing of three closely printed volumes could not be rushed through in five minutes, especially with printers gone to camp and everything upside down. During those two years I have not been without anxiety lest evil should befall the volumes entrusted to me. On the night of April 29, 1915, thirty or forty bombs fell within a few hundred yards of them. Having done so once one never felt sure that they might not do so again, and next time with worse results. However, the volumes have now safely gone back to the vestry and I have not got to face the awkward question, "What have you done with those books which you borrowed?" I may add that both at Bury and at Woodbridge bombs have fallen and done great damage within a few yards of the printing shops in which these three volumes were being printed.

SECT. II. POPULATION. The population of Bury St Edmunds as given in the first five Census returns is thus :

		1801.	1811.	1821.	1831.	1841.	1851.
St Mary	...	4090	4206	5230	5494	6269	7232
St James	...	3565	3780	4769	5942	6269	6668
		7655	7986	9999	11436	12538	13900

The exact equality of the two parishes in 1841 is curious and makes one half suspect a mistake. But all the above returns lie outside my boundary, which is the year 1800. It may be as well therefore to try and see what was the population from 1560 to 1800, the time which is actually represented by these volumes. During that time Bury consisted of two parishes, St Mary's and St James', which seem always to have been about equal in size, St Mary's a little the biggest. As there was no official numbering of the people before 1801 it is not easy to give the exact population of any place before that year. One can only estimate it more or less vaguely from various returns which were made for other purposes. I will estimate it from such returns as I chance to have before me.

Now as to whence these figures are got and what must be done to them before they give the total number of inhabitants :—

A.D. 1377, 1381. The figures for these years I have taken from Mr Edgar Powell's work, The Rising in East Anglia in 1381. Therein he prints various returns relating to the poll tax for those years from the contemporary documents in the P. R. O. It was this tax that caused Wat Tyler's rebellion, and he thinks that the diminished figures in A.D. 1381 may have been partly caused by people going out into the woods and wastes in order to avoid the collector. As the figures only include those who were 14 or 15 years old and upwards, something must be added to get the whole population. Suppose we add one fourth, then we get a population of about 3050 in A.D. 1377, and 1660 in A.D. 1381.

A.D. 1524. The figures for this year I have taken from one of my Suffolk Green Books, viz. Suffolk in 1524. Therein I have printed from the contemporary document in the P. R. O. the names of all those who were charged to a subsidy that year in the whole of Suffolk. As they were included who had nothing but their wages on which to be charged, so the return must include nearly every householder and a few others besides. If we multiply the number by four to bring in the women and children it will give a total population of about 2612.

A.D. 1603. The figures for this year I have taken from the Proceedings of the Suffolk Arch. Inst., XI, 45. Therein are printed from a MS in the British Museum the answers made by the Suffolk clergy in 1603 to certain questions put to them by the Bishop. Two of those questions were, How many Communicants in your parish, and, How many recusants? Communicants and recusants would include between them the whole adult population and rather more, all who were about 15 years and upwards. In which case we have to add to these figures about the same proportionate number as to the figures of 1377 and 1381. That would give St Mary's parish 1180 persons, St James 932. Total 2112.

A.D. 1674. The figures for this year I have taken from another of my Suffolk Green Books, viz. Suffolk in 1674, which gives the name of every man in Suffolk who paid hearth tax and the number of hearths in his house for which he paid. The number of those who paid in each of the two Bury parishes is given separately. The number of those exempt through poverty in each of the two parishes is lumped together. The latter would include a good many old people and dwellers in almshouses. If we multiply the payers by four and the exempt by three it would give the town a total population of about 4500.

A.D. 1757, 1775. The figures for these years I have taken from Gillingwater's Account of Bury St Edmunds, 1804. He does not say how he got them, but probably they are correct.

So we get these totals in very roughly calculated figures :—

A.D. 1377.	1381.	1524.	1603.	1674.	1757.	1775.	1801.	A.D.
POP. 3050.	1660.	2612.	2112.	4500.	5819.	7135.	7655.	POP.

It would seem then that these registers represent rather the smallest half of a town, whose whole population during the time that they cover, A.D. 1560 to 1800, was gradually moving on from about 2600 to 7600. This was not a time when towns were growing with mushroom growth. They had their walls and their gates, and they wisely kept within them.

SECT. III. THE TWO CHURCHES. Now to turn to another point. On Aug. 28, 1677, John Evelyn paid a visit to Lord Arlington at his new-built house at Euston. He was met at Bury by a coach and six. While staying at Euston he came over to Bury to see Lord Crofts who was a dying. Lord Crofts' estate was at Little Saxham, where the moat remains but nothing much else of the house. But he had also a house in Bury, and I suppose it was there that he lay a dying. This is what Evelyn enters in his diary :—

1677, Sept. 4. I went to visit my lord Crofts, now dying at St Edmunds Bury, and took the opportunity to see this ancient town, and the remains of that famous monastery and abbey. There is little standing entire save the gate house; it has been a vast and magnificent Gothic structure and of great extent. The gates are wood, but quite plated over with iron. There are also two stately churches, one especially.

The two Bury churches are so much of a muchness that one wonders which of them is "especially" stately. Probably Evelyn meant St Mary's which stands out best and has most elbow-room.

Another writer of about the same date but not so serious mentions one of the churches without making it clear which he meant. This is Thomas Shadwell in his comedy, Bury Fair, printed in 1689. Thomas Shadwell had been educated at Bury Grammar school, and so he knew the geography of Bury and the ways of the fair. The play shows a London barber coming to the fair on business. But a gentleman wishing for some amusement persuades him to pretend to be a French count. He does so and succeeds in captivating all the ladies. This leads to more than one challenge to fight a duel. The appointed place of meeting is "at the east end of the biggest church." One of the combatants waits in the churchyard, and another hoping to combine the keeping of his engagement according to the letter with the avoidance of a fight which he dreads crouches close under a pillar of the church. I presume a pillar means a buttress. This too is probably St Mary's church, though the epithet "biggest" is not very distinctive.

In Warren's plan of Bury St Edmunds, 1747, the length of St Mary's is given as 217 feet, and that of St James as 198 feet. Gillingwater gives St Mary's 139 feet + (chancel) 74; and St James 137 + (chancel) 56. So that the extra bigness of St Mary's lies in the chancel. But no two people's measurements ever seem to agree.

SECT. IV. THE REGISTERS AND NOTES IN THEM. Now leaving the town and the church we come to the registers. A few notes have been written on the fly-leaves or elsewhere which I have not printed among the entries, but will do so here. We will take them volume by volume.

Vol. I. This is a parchment volume of 91 folios, about $14\frac{1}{2}$ by 12 inches. The entries are in double, sometimes treble, columns. It contains:—

Baptisms from March 2, 1557/8 to the end of December, 1664.

Marriages from April 19, 1562 to do. do.

Burials from May 2, 1562 to do. do.

Each of the three is kept distinct. From about 1646 the entries of Baptisms are in a frightful state of confusion. An illiterate hand squeezes in forgotten entries anyhow and anywhere. Entries get fewer and fewer till about the middle of 1653, when for a time they cease altogether in this volume. In 1662 they begin again. The entries of burial are also scanty during those troublous years. Luckily the deficiencies of this volume are partly supplied by Vol. II.

All the entries from their beginning to the end of 1600 are written by one hand and at about one time. The first note that I print below shows whose that hand was, viz. that of Richard Greenwood, curate of the parish. He has copied out the entries very clearly and neatly from "th' ould coppies." But possibly those old copies were not very clearly written, for there are certainly some errors in Greenwood's copy, though not necessarily of his making. I will give one instance. In August 1565 is buried Roger Ducke son of Richard Revell. In June 1567 is buried John Bruck son of Richard Revell. There is no doubt about the reading of these entries. But the two children are evidently sons of Richard Revell's wife by a former marriage, and must both be Bruck or both be Ducke. There are other instances of what must be either a misreading of his original by Greenwood who is my original, or a copying by Greenwood of a mistake made by his original. I mention this partly in self-defence, to show that all the mistakes in these printed volumes are not necessarily of my making, though I have no doubt that I have made some. Nor are they necessarily of Greenwood's making, for they may have been in "th' ould coppies" which he copied.

After Greenwood had copied the arrears of forty years he did not go on for long keeping the registers. Another hand appears. Apparently that hand was a careless one, for at the end of 1604 a terrific threat is entered: Note that every buriall you omit you forfeit 30 P. (Burials p. 42.) From time to time a fresh hand comes in, sometimes that of the curate, sometimes that of the parish clerk. Some write fairly well, some villainously.

This first note by Greenwood is on a fly-leaf at the beginning of Vol. I. :—

NUMERUS	}	BAPTIZATORUM 2606.
		MATRIMONIO CONJUNCTORUM 1402.
		SEPULTORUM 1754.

Besyds some yeares not extant in th'ould coppyes there have bene baptised in this parish since hir Majestye's reigne; of boyes 1343, of girles 1263: 2606.

Besides 4 yeares left out in the former coppyes there have bene maryed in this parish since hir majesty's reigne without lycences, parsons 1402.

After certeyne yeares not found in th'ould coppyes there have bene buried in this parish since hir majesty's reigne; besyds many infants unbaptised; parsons 1754.

If any thinge semeth to be written false in the names of these parsons followinge, impute it unto the former coppyes which I altogether followed, least I should have comitted a greater fault in altering any parson's name not known to me.

Incidit in Scyllam cupiens vitare Charibdim.

Per me Richardum Grenewoodd Martii 4 anno salutis 1600.

The next four notes were written at the beginning of Vol. I apparently by Richard Haddock, parish clerk. His writing is none of the best. I have already printed the baptism of the three dafters among the registers, but am not sure how to read the father's name.

The Parlelement was removed Aprill the 20 in the yeare 1653.

The darke Mondaye was March the 29 in the yare 1652.

May the 4 and fift the great froste in the year 1652. Richard Haddock.

Baptiesed Octobar 29 3 daftars of gey Manes 1652, all the 3 borne at a birth.

These next sentences are written at the feet of different folios as dated; they are evidently written by Richard Greenwood:—

Mundus iste est Rotundus. (Marr: 1577.) Memento mori. (Bur. 1571.) Cur moritur homo Cum. (Bur. 1578.) Pulvis es et ad pulv: ibis. quis non mortale, quis nisi mentis et: . (Bur. 1593—5.)

These next are scrawled by Richard Haddock on a fly-leaf at the end of Vol. I. The entry about the rising is made again just below by a better but contemporary hand.

The accompts to be given in the Monday before madsumor bye the churchwardens concerning there expences.

The rieseing in Bury sent Edmon was on asension daye 1648.

For the rising see Kingston's East Anglia and the Great Civil War, p. 252. See also a burial on May 16, 1648, which was evidently connected with it.

Vol. II. This volume runs from Oct. 1653 into 1662 for births and deaths, but only to Nov. 1658 for marriages. Consequently there are no marriages recorded for 1659 and 1660, and very few for 1661. After the last entry of marriage in 1658 some leaves have been torn out which may have had entries on them for these missing years. I have called this volume the Commonwealth volume, not merely because there was a Commonwealth while it was running, but because it was entirely the work of a Commonwealth official. The keeping of the registers was no longer in the hands of the clergyman or parish clerk, of whom the former was often slovenly and forgetful and the latter was often illiterate, but an official called the register was appointed to keep them. We generally call the man a registrar now, in order to avoid the inconvenience of having the same word to mean a man or a book.

By an Act of Parliament, 1653, registrars or registers were to be appointed by every parish and sworn by a Justice of the Peace. He was to enter the births and deaths in a book and to have charge of the book. He was also to publish the names of those intending to get married on three Lord's days following in church "at the close of the morning exercise," or (if the parties desired it) in the market place on three weekly market days following between the hours of 11 and 2. The marriage service was to be performed by a Justice of the Peace.

That new law explains Vol. II. This is the book that was then ordered. The registrar or register appointed for the parish of St James was one Jonathan May, and he did his work extremely well. He writes well and allows himself room. He does not write one entry so close to the one before it that you can hardly distinguish them, and then afterwards try to squeeze two or three forgotten ones in between them, reminding one of the two families that occupied one small room between them and then each began to take in lodgers. The register of births has also a column for days of baptism, and the register of deaths has also a column for days of burial. From this last one can see how very quickly burial followed death.

But it is the register of marriage contracts which is the fullest and most interesting. Here we have particulars given such as have never been given before and will not be given again for some time to come. The parentage and abode of the parties is given, and, if in service, their master's name, and the name of the witnesses. The name of the officiating Justice and of the minister who sometimes accompanies him is also given. When the publication of the contract is stated to have taken place "at the Market Cross," then the three days named must have been Wednesdays, market days then as now, and people must have gathered round the registrar to learn who was going to be married, just as they gathered round the salesmen close by and the performers of wonderful feats. When the publication is not stated to be at the market cross, then it is "at James his church" and the three days are usually (not quite always) Sundays. This register is one of marriage contracts published in St James church or in the market place and not only of marriages that took place here. A good many of the marriages did not take place here. When the registrar knows where the marriage took place he tells us. But sometimes he does not know, or he only knows that they went "into the country" to be married. Sometimes there is a hitch and the marriage is delayed. Sometimes it is broken off altogether. Whatever he knows he tells us. He is not in such a scrambling hurry as the clergyman often was when he made entries in the register, nor did he write as if every inch of parchment was worth a million pounds.

Vol. III. This volume contains Baptisms, Marriages and Burials from Jan. 1664/5 to the end of 1725. Its title I have printed in the volume of Baptisms, p. 159. It has a book-plate of green leather with this inscription printed in gold letters :—

John Harreson, William Allexander,
Churchwardens, July the 4 anno 1665.

At the end of Burials, 1725, Mr Haggitt has made this entry :—

A stone bearing an inscription as under was broken by the accidental fall of some heavy materials during the repair of the church in 1829. "Here lyeth the body of "Mr John Moody merchant late of Ireland, who dyed the 15 of September, 1717, "aged 69." The stone was placed close to the door of pew No. 103 in the nave and immediately adjoining the stone of Mr Samuel Moody on the west side thereof. An entry of the Burial of Mr John Moody will be found nine pages backward on Sept. 19, 1717. G. J. H. July 1829.

At the end of Vol. III is this imperfect list of Readers with the number of years that they held office. To the first four is added their age at death. The first five names are written by the same hand, I think that of John Brinkley. The next four are perhaps by one hand, and the last four are perhaps by a third hand. I do not think that each one has added his own name. The 59 years given to Richard Greenwood should apparently be 39, though there is no doubt about the figures. The 28 years given to John Long (whose name is a little doubtful) are got by ignoring his successors and adding their years to his. The 42 years given to John Brinkley apparently by the second hand do not agree with the dates.

1597. Richard Greenwood, 59, 83.
1636. John Long, 28, 52.
1664. Isaac Wragg, 3, 27.
1667. John Bull, 33, 57.
1700. John Brinkley, 42.
1751. J. Sharpe, 42.
1793. G. Mathew, 6.

1799. R. Baker, 6.
1805. G. R. Leathes, 5.
1810. W. Stocking, 19.
1829. G. W. Mathew, 5.
1834. C. Atkinson, 5.
1839. J. P. Reynolds.

Vol. IV, etc. Of the remaining volumes nothing need be said. On a fly-leaf at the end of the volume containing Baptisms and Burials 1779 to 1797 is entered, The Form of the Entry of an Appointment of a Preacher and subscribed to by him in the Book of the Corporation. This is followed by the corresponding form of the appointment of a Reader. They are rather long and so I will omit them.

SECT. V. (1) QUEEN'S VISIT, 1578. (2) THE FIRE, 1608. There are two short notes, both written in Vol. I, which I have printed among the entries where they occur, and as to which one word may be said.

(1) One of them will be found printed in the volume of Burials, p. 15. Under August, 1578, the note says, At this time the Q. majesty at Bury. It was on Saturday, Aug. 5, that Queen Elizabeth passed through Bury. She was passing from Suffolk into Norfolk. She had come the day before from Melford hall, had dined that day at Lawshall hall and slept that night at Hawstead place. Then next morning she came to Bury, where she created several knights, including the owners of Rushbrooke and Hengrave. I think she must have passed through Bury again a little later on when returning from Norfolk through Cambridgeshire to London. But neither on this nor on any other occasion did she go to Rushbrooke, as local papers are continually telling us. The part of Rushbrooke on this occasion was to feast the French Ambassadors, who formed a part of her following.

(2) The other note will be found printed in the volume of Baptisms, p. 62. Under April 11, 1608, it says, The great fier at St Edmundesbury. From a tract printed in 1608 and reprinted at Ipswich in 1845 I gather the following particulars:—

The fire began between 8 and 9 on Monday morning, April 10, 1608, in the house of one Randall, a malster, in Eastgate Street, just beyond the east gate. I presume that would be between the east gate and the bridge, as otherwise the flames would have had to leap the river. "The sleepe negligence" of a servant was the beginning of it, though one does not quite see why a servant oversleeping herself should cause a fire to break out. Apparently there was a strong wind blowing from the east, for the fire was quickly carried to the market place. One can easily imagine the east wind in April, and I presume that the line which the fire took was along Eastgate Street, the Mustow, Lombs lane and the north side of Angel Hill, and so into the Market place. We are told that the Market place, that was the ornament of the whole town, was the principal part that felt the fury of the assault. The goodly houses and stately buildings in it were utterly defaced, and ware-houses and sellars full of fish, salt, sugar, spices, etc. were turned into ashes. The walls, fences and hedges within the town were all laid level to the ground, which shows that there was a good deal of ground not yet built upon, and corn-mows and hay-mows were consumed.

Mr. Pinner, a grocer in the Market place, in the parish of St James, "where the most hurt was done," lost a new house which had just cost him £400 or £500 to build, and all the wares which he had, both of his own and of other men's. The market cross and the lead of it were consumed. Mr Cox, a draper in the same parish, lost everything except a little yarn which he had by chance in a warehouse in Rotten-row, a place near the Market place.

The fire raged from the Monday morning till the Wednesday after, and could not be quenched though all the wells and ponds were drawn dry. Upwards of two hundred dwelling houses with their household stuff were consumed; and barns with much corn unthreshed in them; and much wheat, barley and rye threshed and laid up in chambers; and horses, kine, swine and other cattle. The prison was also consumed to ashes, but the prisoners had been removed. A cart laden with corn was coming to the market when the wind carried the flames to it, and it was all consumed and two or three of the horses turned into ashes. The Justices of the Peace who were then assembled for Quarter Sessions did their best, but £100,000 will not make good the losses.

Such are the few facts that one can gather from this tract. It is chiefly made up of ejaculations, lamentations, pious reflections and such like. The fire must have been almost entirely confined to St James' half of the town. It might be possible to trace its course more exactly by noting where there are still houses of an earlier date than 1608. There is a house in the narrow Eastgate street which must be earlier than 1608 and which must have escaped by a miracle. If Moyses hall bears no marks of burning, then the fire must have marched up to the Market place from the east leaving it on its right. Do people who have gardens in a town ever dig in them to see what the soil contains? If they go deep enough, that soil must contain many memorials of the past, and perhaps some memorials of this fire might be found now.

SECT. VI. INDIVIDUALS. Of individual persons who enter these registers I will not attempt to say anything. There are too many of them. A few monks of the newly dissolved abbey might come into the earlier pages of Burials. But if there are any I have not found them out. The Rev. William Symonds has printed in the Proceedings of the Suff. Arch. Inst. a list of those who come into the registers of St Mary's parish. Bury having been a residential town in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries one might have expected to find more visitors in the registers than there seem to be. Index No. 2 in the volume of Baptisms and No. 3 in that of Burials will show whatever titles or descriptions of any sort are given to people. But these are given so irregularly that that index cannot show all that there were.

SECT. VII. CONTINUITY OF FAMILIES. Comparing names in the early pages of these registers with those in the Bury of to-day, one sees how very few have gone on uninterruptedly from that day to this. How few names remain over a shop front from one century to another without needing to be painted out and to have another painted in in their place! One name that comes into these registers very early and was perhaps already here when they began is that of Haddock. A Richard Haddock was parish clerk in the reign of Charles I. I think the name went on uninterruptedly through that century and the next. My published list of Bury Grammar School boys shows six brothers of the name coming to the school from a street in Bury within the first half of the nineteenth century. One of them, a Bedfordshire clergyman, died in 1913 aged 90 years. And now as I am writing this Preface I see that a sister of theirs, Miss Ann Haddock, brings a long life of 97 years to an end in a house over the way. And with her the long connection of Bury with that name comes to an end. It is curious that an Amy Haddock should have died in June 1825 aged 95 years, as is shown by a stone in the churchyard. The two together make a bridge over a space of 185 years, from George II to George V, from Walpole to Asquith, from Marlborough to Kitchener and French.

Another name which was here when these registers began and which went on uninterruptedly till the middle of the nineteenth century is that of Hasted. Its earlier forms, Halstead and Hawstead, show that it had its first beginning in this neighbourhood, and where it began there it went on while four or five centuries went by. But it had to yield to time at last. These are two instances. There may be others, but they must needs be few. One would like to see in a tabulated form whither those go who go, whence those come who come in their place, what makes those go who go, what makes those come who come. But it would need rather a large table. The migrations of birds are simple compared with the migrations of people.

SECT. VIII. MUROISCO ROMANA, THE GIPSY GIRL. I had intended giving, as I have done in other volumes, a list of christian names that occur and the number of times that each occurs. Such lists are instructive and show the rise and fall of christian names. But it is troublesome to make and probably nobody would look at it after it was made. So I shall save myself the trouble of making it.

But I may mention one christian name, Maurisco, Muroisco, Marisco, as variously written. This name has an innings of about 140 years, as far as I can see, in Bury and the neighbourhood. It begins with the marriage of Robert Winter and Muroisco Romana at Little Saxham church in 1623. The bride was an undoubted gipsy, probably coming to church to be married from a caravan on Little Saxham heath, which was then not yet enclosed. She may have seen King James I when he paid his occasional visits to the Crofts at Little Saxham hall, and she may have told the fortunes of Sir John Crofts' gay daughters.

Five children were born to Robert and Muroisco, one of whom, Robert, lived in Bury. He had a daughter called Muroisco after her grandmother. The Little Saxham registers and a group of picturesque tombstones in that churchyard show that he and his wife and two of his daughters were carried from Bury to Little Saxham for burial. By marriage the name was carried into the Forster or Foster family of Bury. In 1710 was baptized Marisco Forster, who married (1) Frank Fuller in 1737, (2) Samuel Wright of Chevington in 1758. I do not see the name after that. Though the name is gone yet something gipsyish that was of Muroisco Romana and that came from her may yet remain in her descendants. Winters, Forsters or Fosters, Fullers, Hugginses, and perhaps others might be among those descendants.

SECT. IX. EPIDEMICS. One may look to the register of Burials to see what signs they show of epidemics.

1578. From Aug. 1578 to Aug. 1579 there are 31 entries marked with P for plague. It seems to have begun immediately after Queen Elizabeth's visit. But in spite of it the total number of burials, 60 in 1578, and 30 in 1579, shows no excess. But, as my note on p. 17 shows, there is some confusion and omission in 1579 or 1580. From Mr Tymms' paper I learn that the registers of St Mary's parish show a very large number of burials from Aug. 1578 to March 1579/80.*

1587. This year a still larger number of entries are marked P. The total number of burials for the year is 139 instead of a normal 40 or thereabouts. Mr Tymms says that the infected were lodged in tents in the fields round the town, and quotes from the accounts of the Guildhall Feoffees, who contributed towards the expence thereof.

1637. This year the burials are very many, 206, and there are notes about the plague. It seems to have begun in Risbygate street. Many persons were buried at St Peter's or in the churchyard "without solemnity." None were married between July and Jan. "by reason of the sickness." One note written in the margin opposite December I have stated at p. 91 was too faint to be read. But since writing that I have read Mr Tymms' paper, who gives the note thus: Here the plague stayed in this parish, God be thanked. It returned in February, and another hand has added to the note, for a while. Now I know what the words are I can see them. Perhaps they were not quite so faint in 1848 when Mr Tymms read them. In St Mary's parish the plague seems to have been worse, as Mr Tymms gives the number of burials there as 435 between July and December.

1666. In March the Town Council prohibited St Mathew's and St Edmund's fairs from being held this year, "by reason of these times of God's visitation, "wherein by drawing together a concourse of people from sundry places the "sickness might have been brought into the towne." (Prigge's Memorials of the Past, p. 73.) This foresight seems to have answered its purpose, as the number of burials was only 83, about the normal number. In 1665 it had been 110.

1718. In December the earl of Bristol sent Alderman Cary £100 for poor families in Bury who were afflicted with small pox. He at the same time sent the Corporation six dozen bottles of wine for them to drink while deciding on the distribution of the money. (John Hervey's Letterbooks II, p. 68.) The number of burials this year was 119.

1742. In July the Alderman, Justices, Ministers, Churchwardens, Physicians and others sent an advertisement to the newspaper indignantly denying a report that the small pox was very much in the town. This made me suspect that all was not well. Looking into the register of burials I find 197 for 1741, and 130 for 1742, two very bad years. If they had not advertized that all was well I should not have suspected that all was not well.

It is difficult to say what was a normal number of burials, but I think that before 1600 it would have been under 50. Then with a rising population it would rise, but I do not think that at any time it would have reached 100. I will set down all the years in which it exceeded 120.

SECT. X. CLERGY AND PATRONS. During the time that I am concerned with, 1560 to 1800, the clergy of this parish consisted of a Preacher or Lecturer, and a Curate, Reader or Minister.

The duty of the Preacher, as defined on a fly-leaf of Vol. VII of the Registers, which runs from 1779 to 1797, was to preach twice every Sunday in St James' church; once a fortnight to preach the Friday lecture in St Mary's church; to preach in St James' on Christmas day, Jan. 30, May 29 and Nov. 5 every year; also upon every day of humiliation or thanksgiving that might be appointed; to administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, to visit the sick of St James' if requested, and to reside within the Borough. For which the Corporation will pay him £80 a year.

The duty of the Curate or Reader was to read prayers in St James' church twice a day for four days in every week, viz. Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and twice upon every holy day or day of humiliation and thanksgiving that might be appointed; and to visit the sick and attend to the burial of the dead and do other duties incumbent upon the office, and to reside within the Borough. For which he will take all surplice fees heretofore usually taken.

These two descriptions of parish clergymen came to an end in 1845, when the Hon. Edward Pellew was appointed Incumbent or Vicar. I had intended to have given a list of them. But on looking into them I find so much confusion between the clergy of the two parishes, and so much confusion between the two kinds of clergy, and so much confusion caused by clergymen appointed who did not act and clergymen acting who were not appointed, that a clear and complete list would need much trouble to make and much space to occupy. Corporation records would need to be thoroughly searched. I have therefore given it up. In his privately printed volume, Brief Records of St James' Church, 1878, the late Mr Beckford Bevan has included two lists, but, as he acknowledges, they are not complete. The list I have just printed from a fly-leaf in the Registers is also imperfect. (P. xiii.)

With regard to the appointing of these clergymen, Mr Tymms in his History of St Mary's Church, 1845, says that after the dissolution of monasteries the patronage was given by Act of Parliament to the Crown. And he quotes a paper (printed in Strype's Annals, III, part iii, 172), which says that the custom ever since the suppression of the abbey was for "the people of Burie to chuse their own Ministers." The date of this paper was about 1582. In 1614 the Crown granted the patronage to the Corporation, who subsequently (it is not known exactly when they began to do so) began to appoint the two clergymen and continued to do so till about 1840. They then sold the patronage, which (St James') was bought by Mr Henry Wilson of Stowlangtoft. The Preachers and Readers came to an end in 1845, when the Hon. Edward Pellew began a new series of Vicars.

SECT. XI. FROM RUNNYMEDE TO WATERLOO. If one should ask, What is the earliest register of burials? it would be difficult to find any much earlier than the simple record in Gen. xlix. 31, a register of burials in the cave of Machpelah, a register written in an old man's memory.

There they buried Abraham and Sarah his wife; there they buried Isaac and Rebekah his wife; and there I buried Leah.

But I will not go so far away either in point of time or space, and will look only at the registers with which these three volumes are concerned. One can see that though Baptisms, Marriages and Burials all begin at about the same date, yet it is the register of Burials that carries one back furthest. For those baptized are just beginning their course while those buried have just finished it. A burial may carry one fifty years or more further back than does a baptism of the same date. The baptism may belong to the early days of Queen Elizabeth, but the burial of the same date may carry one back to the days of her grandfather, Henry VII. The person then buried may have belonged to the days when no fruits of the Reformation were as yet to be seen, when men were still leaving legacies in order that masses might for ever be offered for their souls, little thinking how soon those masses would cease, and when monks were still passing to and fro between the abbey gate and the town, little thinking how short their time was and how soon the way through the abbey gate would lead only to ruins and desolation.

It may be useful to mention a few longish lists that there are of Bury folk at different dates, which can be strung together end on end and so made to reach the beginnings of these registers. And then they (if printed in full) and the registers, the whole lot together, would show to a great extent what were the names of those who were dwelling in the town and walking its streets from (say) 1250 to 1800. Those two dates will carry one from the reign of one king who kept a jubilee to the reign of another king who kept a jubilee, i.e. from Henry III to George III; from a time when the Norman tower and Moyses hall were scarce a century old, when the two churches and even the present abbey gate had not yet been built, when King John and Runnymede were still living memories, to a time when Napoleon was beginning to startle Europe and was paving the way that led to Waterloo.

The first list that I name is dated A.D. 1295. But of course men in that list began to live many years before that year and went on living many years after it. So one may say that the list takes one back to 1250 and takes one on to 1320. And so likewise with the 1327 and other lists. So when the 1295 men reach forward and stretch out their hands and the 1327 men reach backward and stretch out their hands, they can easily join hands as children do when playing a game. From the first list to the end of the printed registers there is only one period when the men reaching forward cannot join hands with the men in front of them reaching back. And that is between the list of 1327 and that of 1524. The men of 1327 may reach forward to 1360. The men of 1524 may reach backwards to 1490. But strain them as you will you cannot make them join hands. There must remain between them an unbridged gap of a hundred years. Of course hundreds of individuals can be scraped together from various records and thrown into that gap, but there does not seem to be any long list that will fill it. Except for that gap the joined hands will reach from Runnymede (or at least its living memory) to Waterloo. These are the lists:—

A.D. 1295. This is a long roll formerly belonging to Bury abbey, now among the town records. It gives a list of tenements in Bury belonging to different officials of the abbey, such as the prior, almoner, sacrist, cellarer and others. It describes over 300 holdings, and gives the names of their present and past holders, and shows exactly in what street or part of the town they are situated. Mr Redstone did very good service in printing it in the Proceedings of the Suffolk Arch. Inst., xiii, 191—222.

A.D. 1327. I cannot out of modesty leave out lists for the printing of which I am responsible, and so I must set down this very important one. It will be found in one of the Suffolk Green Books, viz. Suffolk in 1327. Under Bury St Edmunds will be found the names of 154 inhabitants who paid the king's tax that year. The tax was one twentieth part of the value of their moveable goods. In Bury it amounted to about £24 out of about £1080 for the whole county. The king was Edward III. The year was the very year in which the abbey gate had been destroyed by rioters, so that the present one had not yet risen up.

A.D. 1524. Between this list and the one above is where the ugly gap lies of a good hundred years. This list will be found in another Suffolk Green Book, viz. Suffolk in 1524. In it will be found under Bury St Edmunds the names of about 650 people who paid the king's tax for that year. Between them they paid about £120 out of about £3500 for the whole county.

A.D. 1527. This list synchronizes with the one above, and is of the same kind as that for 1295. It is a rental of tenements in Bury belonging to the sacrist of the abbey. It enumerates 130 tenements, street by street, giving the names of former and present holders. The original is among the town records, and has been printed in Memorials of the Past, a reprint of what had appeared in the Bury Post c. 1889, for which the late Mr Henry Prigg was responsible.

A.D. 1568. This list will be found in another Suffolk Green Book, viz. Suffolk in 1568. Therein under Bury St Edmunds will be found the names of 182 inhabitants who paid the queen's tax that year. Between them they paid £56 out of about £2160 for the whole county.

Later lists than these need not be given. These five, 1295, 1327, 1524, 1527, 1568, will bring us right down to the registers, which will bring us on to 1800. That is what I have called hands joined from Runnymede to Waterloo.

SECT. XII. PARISH BOUNDARY. It may be as well to show from what parts of the town the people in these registers have mostly come. The town has always been divided into two parishes, St Mary's and St James', of which St Mary's seems to have had rather the larger population. I do not know whether there is anything to show what was the medieval boundary between the two, but I do not think that it could have been very different to what is the boundary now.

A practically straight line starting from the abbey gate and running due west right up to the modern cemetery would divide the pre-railway town into two halves. All to the left or south of that line would be St Mary's parish, all to the right or north of it would be St James'. That line would cut the Angel Hill (formerly the Mustow) into two halves, giving a half to each parish; it would then pass up the middle of Abbeygate street (formerly Cook Row as to the lower half and Barber's Row as to the upper half) giving a side to each parish; then passing the Woolhall and crossing St Andrew's street it would pass up Cemetery Road (formerly Field lane), and so come to the cemetery. That gives two of the gates, the south gate and the west gate, to St Mary, and the other three, Risby, north and east, to St James. St Mary has two of the wards, St James has the other three, north, east, and high or Risbygate ward. St James gets all the markets, and the spital house in Risbygate street, and the sixteenth century sick house, wherever that was, and it has had the three successive sites occupied by King Edward VI Grammar School. From the number of prisoners that come into the early registers St James must have had the prison at that time, though I don't know where it was. Downing's map, 1740, puts it next to the Woolhall. Though I have nothing to do with centuries so recent as the nineteenth and twentieth, yet I may add that in 1914 St James' parish got the Cathedral and St James' parish church is now the Cathedral church of a new diocese. In spite of all this St Mary's church seems to have had a sort of undefined and undefinable priority. There the Mayor and Corporation had their pew and worshipped in state, and thither went the judge, the representative of the king, when he came to hold an assize.

I presume that the abbot and monks were not parishioners of any parish. But after the dissolution all the site of the abbey was in St James'. In Oct. 1599 was buried John Hall out of the abbey. In the Hearth tax return for 1674 Mr Hall for the abbey 16 hearths comes under St James' parish. And those who to-day live in the west end of the abbey church are parishioners of St James'.

It is sometimes said that St James' church stands within St Mary's parish. So it may do in one sense. If it had been a house the occupier of that house would have been a parishioner of St Mary's. But being a parish church, perhaps it would be more correct to say that it is an island in St Mary's parish. There are, or at least there were till a late Victorian Act of Parliament got rid of them, bits of one county entirely within and surrounded by another county. There are often bits of one parish entirely within and surrounded by another parish. These are technically known as islands. And so St James' church might be called an island (or rather a peninsula) in St Mary's parish.

The register of Burials mentions a work-house as early as 1612. It could then only just have been set up. For Sir Ambrose Jermyn of Rushbrooke in his will, 1577, leaves £40 towards a stock of money to be paid when the Justices and other honest inhabitants of Bury shall have set up a house in said town wherein the Poor may be set to work and provided for. And his son, Sir Robert Jermyn, in his will, proved in 1614, leaves £20 for the same object to be paid "whensoever the Corporation of Burye shall provide a house to set the poore and youth on work, soe as they may at noe tyme come to breake downe and carry away gates, stiles, pales, wood and hedges out of any groundes nowe in my possession." (Rushbrooke, p. 145, 153.)

[Here we leave Vol. 1 for the present and go to Vol. 2, the Commonwealth volume. It contains all marriage contracts that were published either in St. James' church on Sunday or at the Market Cross on market day, Wednesday. St. James' church may be understood wherever I have not printed "at the Market Cross." If a marriage followed it was entered in this volume in whatever church it took place, so long as the Register or Registrar had knowledge of it. Unless otherwise stated the marriage is in St. James' church. In each entry after the first I have left out the first six words. The abbreviation J.P. is mine. Ed.]
